Today's fun fact:

Virginia Hall was considered the "most dangerous of all allied spies" by the Germans, who referred to her as "The Limping Lady" due to her wooden leg. She worked behind German lines for over 30 years, and is the most successful female spy ever to have worked for the OSS (precursor to the CIA). After WWII, she was the only female civilian to be recognized for her service and was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross from OSS director General Donovan.
